When two people wake up from love's young dream, the woman's first thought is, "How can I patch it up?" the man's "How can I break it off?"

Trouble soon pines away and dies if neglected.

Matrimony to a bachelor is like love's young dream, the woman's first thought is, "How can I patch it up?" the man's "How can I break it off?"

The Little School Girl.

You are a world of fun and pleasure. But for my life, I can not see how you have the time and patience to write verse so easily. You bring back our happy school days with our books and slates and chalk. The old hills and the old meadows. Where in youth we used to walk.

The hard to keep my eyes from snapping.

At the thought of being lost a bit. Romping, laughing, jumping, skipping. Always up to something bad. How the vision of our playthings. With that tattered old school bag—Yes, 'tis there! my eyes are dancing. At the thought of days we had!

Was a tyrant in his reign. As the little old log school house. Down the gully, across the lane. Yes, my heart grows warm and tender.

As your picture comes in view Of the merry days of boyhood. When the world to us was new.

There was too, a little school girl.

Full of gladness as could be. At that age when running Cupid. When his rankling dart at me. Oh, how swiftly time steals off as in a strong, restless stream. But the leaves of my old school book. Treasured, hold youth's glad and green.

Three threads today are peeping. Through that wee wee's hair and mine.

We together beg to thank you. For each purple ribbon and line. May God's blessing always find you.

As now-day and make no noise! You would choose no better subject. Than just little girls and boys.

—William Ware

Mrs. J. A. Madden is entertaining the members of the W. C. T. U. this afternoon. There will be considerable business to come before the meeting and every one should be present.

The Peradale Review club did not meet Wednesday on account of there being so many other affairs on and preparations being made for school entertainments.

Last night at the Glider there was another good practice of the ladies chorus. Miss Hanna is suffering from a severe cold and was scarcely able to sing. On Friday night there will be a general practice and every member is urged to be there as it may be the last practice until the dress rehearsal with the band.

The children in the fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh grades at the Franklin school are having closing exercises today and tomorrow all to themselves. Parents and friends are asked and may attend if they care to but it is really a day among themselves. The report cards will also be distributed which serve as passports to a higher grade the next school term.

Last evening the janitors were at home to the seniors in the Elks recreation rooms. Tonight the grammar school graduates will put on an interesting and entertaining program at the opera house. These boys and girls have been hard students all year and many are the good things we have heard their teachers and associates say about them. Tomorrow evening at the opera house the graduates will have their exercises and class correspondence and a couple of the most prominent hours of your life will be spent by all who attend.

Mrs. Conway was hostess to the Bible study class Wednesday afternoon. The attendance was unusually good and a number of new members were added to the membership list. This is perhaps one of the most beneficial classes in the city, especially for those who are interested in church and Sunday school work, and is non-sectarian. Mrs. Madden has been chosen as teacher and is the right one in the right place. The class will not meet next week and the place of the next meeting will be announced later.

The Kosmo Club members were given a merry evening at mid-week with Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Nichols. This club has only recently been organized and has a membership list of congenial friends and neighbors on Harwayne Heights. Mrs. W. R. Eshkmore is its president and Miss Clara Wolverton its secretary. Their meeting times are every two weeks on Wednesday afternoon and every other week on Friday evenings, at which time the wives ask their husbands and girls their sweethearts and like a jolly gathering. Forty-two is the favored game and many rounds are run ere an evening's finish is called. On this occasion Mrs. Nichols had her game rooms daintily in rags and ferns and tallies on which the summer girl was penned were passed. Miss Mary Murphy scoring the game. Mints were served throughout the evening and at the final of a heated chase it was found that Mrs. Eshkmore and Mr. J. A. Bass secured high and received honors. A four-course luncheon was served. The guest list included Mr. Hollenbeck of St. Louis, father of the hostess; Mr. and Mrs. Hal Wolverton; Mr. and Mrs. John S. Cadel; Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Eshkmore; Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Bass; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Adams; Mr. Reichelderfer and Miss Ada Bennett; Miss Maud Davis and Mr. Homer Adams; Miss Mary Murley, the host and hostess and T. H. Sturgeon and wife.

The reception given the seniors by the juniors last evening at the Elks home was the premier event of the week and marked the closing social affairs of the school year of 1927-28 with much pomp and splendor. The spectacular reception suite in this boys' playhouse home was profusely set in white and red roses, the school colors, and the windows were basked with ferns and potted plants. In here a punch bowl was conveniently placed over which Misses Willie Stephens and Arnold McCoy presided. In the center line were the juniors, the girls in their prettiest spring frocks and the boys, a handsome bunch you seldom see in their conventional sports suits. When something near a hundred guests, the honorees, members of the alumni, teachers, two members of the educational board and a limited number of close school friends, had received greetings they were shown to the banquet hall which was extremely beautiful in decoration with the colors flying high, crepe paper streamers of red and white being festooned from the chandelier to the walls and from the chandelier to the corners of the table were red and white bays. The school flag flew and at every turn with a big A. H. S. smile of welcome. In here, all were seated at the long table where a six-course menu was served, interspersed with a round of merry toasts with Miss Margie Williams mistress of ceremonies, presiding admirably and was the recipient of many complimentary remarks during the evening. Excellent toasts were given by Ernest Jameson, Miss Laura Tucker, Miss Fraser, Miss Hammonds, Miss Hill, Mrs. V. A. Niblack, Prof. Evans, Prof. Canterbury, Leroy Moses and Mr. A. C. Young. Following is the original program with many additional numbers:
